Re: Public Reveal of TAPS Family Investigation

The Paranormal Side of Körner's Folly

Körner's Folly invites the public to attend "The Paranormal Side of Körner's Folly," Friday, July 31st, 7 pm, at in Cupid's Park, the Folly's top-floor community theater.

On hand will be the Southern Paranormal and Anomaly Research Society (SPARS) to share experiences and results from their May 23rd investigation. SPARS is a family member of The Atlantic Paranormal Society, better known as TAPS, made famous by Syfy Channel's Ghost Hunters. SPARS has five members based in the Triad area.

Local legends suggested the Folly to be haunted although there was no evidence to substantiate claims. As the first paranormal group to investigate to property, SPARS was pleasantly surprised by the results.

Triad-based SPARS investigators will briefly outline how paranormal investigations are conducted, basic equipment used, and how to analyze evidence. SPARS will detail the experiences of their seven-hour investigation.

Bruce Frankel, director of Körner's Folly Foundation, is pleased with both SPARS and increased public interest due to the investigation. "SPARS was well prepared, took a comprehensive approach to evaluating their evidence and conducting their research with an organized and methodical game plan. I am not sure how they could have done a better job from the time they identified the Folly as a potential project until the final revealing took place. I welcome this group back any time they felt it is warranted. "

While SPARS cannot claim to know whom -or what- haunts the folly, they do feel the presence is gentle and curious.

The event is open to the public. Tickets are $7.50 and can be purchased on the Körner's Folly website. Seating is limited. All proceeds go to the Körner's Folly Foundation.

Individual tours are available Thursday-Sunday, and guided group tours are available by appointment. For more information about Körner's Folly, visit www.kornersfolly.com or contact Bruce Frankel at (336) 996-7922.
